[redacted] has been designated CHIEF, NACA, and has assumed the duties of the office.

3. The policy of this agency on communications operational jurisdiction in Europe is as follows:

a. The Chief, North Atlantic Communications Activity is responsible for all communications matters involving FIVE areas.

b. The Chief, European Communications Activity is responsible for communications matters involving all FIVE areas, certain FIVE areas and those SIG operations which of necessity must be planned and mounted in

c. The Chief, NACA is further responsible for supporting those operations mounted or planned by ECA in circumstances which preclude their support by the Chief, ECA.

4. Unless NACA can accept this Western Europe Communications responsibility, however, an appropriate staff of Communications Officers must be established in NACA. A beginning has been made in this regard. The Chief, NACA must be supplied with all pertinent data relative to all communications operations, active or planned, which he might be called upon to support at some future date. Such data is required for background information and in the event that [redacted] should not be possible.
